NERVES GAVE OUT, ALMOST IN DESPAIR

Two Severe Cases of Nervous Prostration With Which Doctors Could Do Nothing Oured By Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

Mr. William Graham, Atwood, Ont., writes: "My wife had been ill for some time with nervous prostration, and we had two of the best doctors we could get, but neither of them did her any good. She gradually became worse, could not sleep, and lost energy and interest in life. She was almost giving up in despair, when a friend advised a trial of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food.

"From the first box of this preparation my wife used we noticed an improvement, and after using six boxes she is completely cured, and as well as ever she was—eats well and sleeps well, and feels fully restored. I cannot say too much in praise of this valuable medicine, and am satisfied that my wife owes her life to the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This cure is certified to by Mr. C. H. McFarlane, druggist, Atwood, Ont. Mrs. A. H. Stevens, Burgessville, Ont.

Breaking It

M. Jacques Bonhomme et sa femme were entertaining a couple of friends, says the Cleveland Leader. They had just got seated at the table when Baptiste, the waiter, rushed into the room in a state of wild alarm, exclaiming: "Quick! A glass of wine."

Everybody started, but his wish was complied with, and Baptiste swallowed at one gulp a glass of wine poured out by the lady of the house, who inquired what was the matter with him.

"Oh, madame, I am dreadfully upset. That glass of wine has done me good; it has brought me round. Only think I have just had the misfortune to break over two large desert dishes of Sevres porcelain."

Nearly all infants are more or less subject to diarrhoea and such complaints while teething, and as this period of their lives is the most critical, mothers should not be without a bottle of Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Dysentery Cordial. This medicine is as efficacious for such complaints and is highly spoken of by those who have used it. The proprietors claim it will cure any case of cholera or summer complaint.

It was stated at a meeting of the French academy of science that the presence of tuberculosis, even when latent, could be proved by scratching the skin and rubbing the incision with Koch's tuberculin.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

One person was killed and several others were injured in the motor racing for the Herkomer cup in Germany.

"Something More Than a Purgative."—To purge is the only effect of many pills now on the market. Parmenter's Vegetable Pills are more than a purgative. They strengthen the stomach where other pills weaken it. They cleanse the blood by regulating the liver and kidneys, and they stimulate where other pills complicate. Nothing of an injurious nature, used for merely purgative powers, enters into their composition.

W. N. U. No. 644

xford county, writes: "Two years ago last November I was run down, and did not know what was wrong. I could not sleep or eat, and at last my nervous system gave way entirely, and I had to go to bed. The doctor told me I had nervous prostration, and, though he doctored me for some weeks, I did not get any better. I then began the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and by the time I had used six boxes I was completely cured, and I said, 'Yes, and I feel well, that is the best of it, and Dr. Chase's Nerve Food did it.'"

Dr. Chase's Nerve Food cures diseases of the nervous system, the only natural and effective way—by enriching the blood and creating new nerve force. See a box, six boxes for $2.50 at all dealers, or Edmonstone, Bates & Co., Toronto.

Among our neighbors is a family of bright, interesting, but exceedingly lively youngsters, and, as is always the case in such families, the mother has frequent cause to reprimand them. On such occasions she often points out the good behavior of a certain little playmate as a bad example. One day, when entering their room for some mischief, she said: "Now, Margaret would not do a thing like that, would she?" "No, of course she wouldn't," said Jack, a bright little tot of four, exclaiming: "One day, when I was a girl, she beat the best little girl I knew; but why wouldn't she beat her? After a doctor had examined her, he'd kept the best one for himself." —Chicago Tribune.

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper.

Dear Sirs—This fall I got thrown on a fence and hurt my chest very bad. I could not work, and I had to breathe. I tried all kinds of Liniment and they did me no good. I then bought a bottle of Minard's Liniment, warmed on flannels and applied to my breast, cured me completely.

Richness of Cobalt

A recent report received from the superintendent of the Ontario-Quebec Cobalt by Messrs. Gormley-Tilt & Co., states that the shaft on No. 2 property has been sunk to a depth of 50 feet. The vein has continued to widen with depth, and extremely high values have been obtained.

The recent strike of native silver on the adjoining properties has verified the opinion of leading mining engineers that this property will soon prove to be one of the richest in the Cobalt district.

Plans are already laid to sink a depth of 150 feet, when it is expected that very high values will be found.

The following conversation took place between a hobo and a section foreman on a little branch railroad in Oregon, where they didn't happen to have the best of railroads:

Hobo (to section foreman)—Say, are you de guyvone dat pays dese guys here wot's workin' for yeh?

Section Foreman—Yes, I'm the man.

Hobo—Say, cnd yer tell me when the next big heap of scrap iron will come rollin' down dese two little streaks o' rust—Judge.

KEEP IT TO YOURSELF.

An Old Proverb Verified Many Times and On.

"Never trouble trouble till trouble troubles you" is a very neat and very true proverb. How many of us almost court unhappiness by meeting it halfway—nay, more, a large number of us positively welcome it because it gives us a grievance and we like to feel like martyrs. There is a sort of feeling of glorious heroism in suffering "unadvised mental anguish" that tugs at the heartstrings and makes all the world look black, especially when we take a friend into our confidence and he or she concedes with us.

But we must all learn to keep our troubles to ourselves and not tell them to all and sundry. True heroism lies in patiently bearing our worries and anxieties in silence. Bury your sorrow in the depths of your own heart.

Things thus secretly covered are often cured without a scar, but when they are one polished and confided to meddling friends there is no end to the trouble they may cause.

If your feelings are injured, don't brood over your poor wounded self. Rather pray for that poor misguided sister who slighted you. Perhaps she may have done so quite innocently. Perhaps some of her husbands, brothers and sisters who are very kind, may show us cruelly by their words, angry retorts and mean selfishness.

If this and state of things exists, we must keep it to ourselves even if it is for the sake of those who offend us. We must necessarily divulge to our friends the shortcomings of our fellows. To do this is adverse to the best of Christianity. We must be charitable; we must patiently bear with those who cause us stains of pain; we must ask that they be forgiven.

And that they may be brought to see with a true, clear mind the misery they bring to others by their unkind tongue. First assured that those who utter bitter words and unkind criticisms have moments of regret and remorse and pang of conscience. Were the truth known, they actually suffer more than the recipients of their hasty and ill judged attacks.

After all, troubles are transient things, and when they are all passed and sorrow is under the door what a comfort it is to say: "No one ever knew until it was over with us."

MEN THE BETTER COOKS

They Pay Hail to Perfection of Details, Says an Authority.

M. Escott, the great chef, says men are better cooks than women because they watch trades with thoroughness and insist upon having all needed ingredients, while women will manage with whatever they have at hand. The average woman has had always to make out with what was handy and has not had the management of the purse strings. She has not cooked for profit, but from duty. When men cook they are either in camp or do it for a lark to connect some charming dish daintily they have to feed a club or they are professional cooks.

Women in homes know the failings of their servants, and any house mother will tell you that she has always taken the overdue mauling and the piece of streaky cake, the nicked cup and the wing of the chicken to hide failures or to make the family contented. If women of the intelligence the same incentive and the same training and supplies to do with and then see in time to most kind of cooks women will be.

Do not hot salted meats rapidly. When cooking hams and tongues, the meat, after being washed and prepared, should be placed in cold water and brought slowly to the boiling point. Let it boil five minutes, and then let it only slightly bubble up until the meat is tender.

Fresh meat, on the contrary, should be placed in boiling water and then boiled rapidly for five minutes. After that it should be kept below the boiling point, "just quivering," as one authority remarks, at one side of the saucepan until the meat is tender. Add salt to meat when it is about half cooked.

Indigo Seeds.

One difficulty in the raising of natural indigo is that the seed of the Java plant does not usually germinate satisfactorily owing to its possessing a "cuticle" which is impermeable to water. To remedy this it has been found advantageous to soak the seeds for half an hour in concentrated sulphuric acid and subsequently to wash with water very thoroughly before sowing. Good seed treated in this way has been found to germinate to the extent of 100 per cent.

A Definition.

The Society of Automobile Engineers has recently extended its field of activity by adding to its constitution the following article 1A:

"Definition.—The term 'automobile,' as used by this society, is intended to cover any self-propelled vehicle operated on or under the surface of the earth or water or in the air."

William Penn was once urging a man he knew to stop drinking to excess, when the man suddenly asked: "Can you tell me of an easy way to do it?"

"Yes," replied Penn, readily: "It is just as easy as to open thy hand, friend."

"Convince me of that," the man exclaimed, "and I will promise you my honor to do as you tell me."

"Well, my friend," Penn answered, "whenever thee finds a glass of liquor in thy hand open that hand before the glass touches thy lips, and thou wilt never drink to excess again."

The man was so struck by the simplicity of the great Quaker's advice that he followed for and reformed—Minneapolis Journal.

One trial of Mother Graves' Worm Extremator will convince you that it has no equal as a worm medicine. Buy a bottle and see if it does not please you.

Mr. Beall, the mayor of Alton, Ill., kissed a thousand babies at a children's picnic at Alton. He made a speech denouncing doctors who state that disease is spread by kissing.

Below is exactly what occurred on a West Side street car a few months ago: Three little white boys and a colored boy entered a car one day, and when asked for fares the oldest boy (not over seven years) handed the conductor a dime. The conductor, a son of Erin, and feeling good natured, remarked that that would not do, he wanted twenty cents.

"Oh, no," said the boy. "It's two for five now."

"That means for brothers," replied the conductor. "And this little fellow (pointing to the colored boy) is not your brother."

"My brother's all right," replied the boy. "My mother says there's a black angel in every family."

Disgraceful Crossings

On the corner of Osler street leading to the depot and the one to the north are in a disgraceful condition for a town the size of Didsbury. Visitors to the town as well as taxpayers, who are obliged to use one of these crossings at any rate, have to practically wade through mud that comes over their shoe tops. What is the Board of Works of the town Council doing? The constable could easily make these crossings passable by using a hoe for an hour or two every day.

May be Useless.

The United States Congress will be asked at its next session to decide whether the Panama Canal shall be completed upon the present plans as to size of locks which will provide waterways that could not with safety be navigated by the largest ships now afloat.

It is expected that the canal will be completed in about seven years, and if the same ratio is maintained in ship building as at present in seven years battleships of 95 feet beam will be afloat and the canal will be too small.

Be an Optimist.

How refreshing it is to talk to some of the old-timers on the weather question nowadays.

The newcomers are very apt to take a gloomy view of the weather with which the weather man has seen fit to favor us in the last week, but not so the old-timer. He will tell you of the years that were just as bad and yet Alberta has taken its place as one of the best countries on God's earth to live in.

This is a good, healthy growing sign, and surely if the men who have stayed with the country since before it was a land to live in at all speak so hopefully of the future, why should those who are practically newcomers get discouraged when they have facilities and conveniences of which the old-timers did not dream of having.

They will tell you of the time a few years ago when a very heavy snowstorm came on in September and they could not harvest till October, and yet they had excellent crop yields. And these old-timers are right. This country has had snowstorms out of season before and also a good many other drawbacks incidental to a new country, but what new country has not.

Alberta has been able to take care of itself for the last twenty years in spite of what many good and estimable persons have said about the bottom dropping out of the country, and it is bound to still go ahead in spite of a drawback like we have experienced in the last week, so cheer up and be an optimist.

The False Idea of Handsome Pieces

EVERYTHING FOR SHOW

SO MANY otherwise pretty rooms are spoiled by being overdone that it seems strange that more people do not wake up to the fact that it is too much rather than too little that is the matter with many modern rooms.

Elaborately carved bookcases are loaded down with useless bric-a-brac, the kind housewife confuses. A place could may share honors with a bronzed foot bronze, save the mark! In the space between littered perches with useless trash—think of no value at all, even from a curio collector's standpoint, and with no excuse certainly for breaking the beauty of the straight, simple line.

A bookcase isn't the sort of thing to be heaped with bric-a-brac. One or two things are all very well, but it is pre-eminently a thing with a use to it—that of holding your books—and when it divides that honor with the questionable one of acting as a shelf to pile things upon, it is made anything but artistic.

Go into some houses, filled to overflowing with so-called "handsome" pieces. You have to be careful where you walk—there are funny little chairs here, and absurd little cabinets there—not cabinets bought to hold treasures, but got to look effective by virtue of their good paint and elaborate carvings; their curious—often afterthought—bought to fill them up as elaborately as the overcrowded room they echo.

And pillows—not piled in comfortable confusion, but set importantly one by one—are hopeless sort of affairs, made of white or pink or yellow satin, embroidered or painted in a way that is a relic of the (fortunately) lost art of making tape.

Hangings share the same general fate. A pair of curtains apparently aren't enough for anywhere, and the simple elegance of a thing never by its possibility indulged in. Carpets and paper and furniture clash inharmoniously—it is thought everything had a voice and was trying to make itself heard, like the rest of the worst of it all is that there is absolutely no excuse for that thing—not even the excuse of economy. For those little and elaborate carvings and upholstering and the other details of the confusion are costly and that taste is made to pay.

And, on the other side, there are no two words, when once the question is fairly looked into. The style type wear well, in the sense that you don't get tired of them, but they are hard wear. The others, as you develop, wear tireless and uninteresting may be bought for show and the show has bored you.

A Laundry Hint

The first step in pressing blankets after the tedious process of washing, is to fold them evenly with the perfectly dry, pulling them into shape if one side or corner has become stretched. Then cover with a clean sheet, place a board on top and pile weights on leaving the blankets for a day or two to "iron" themselves.

Keeping Old Letters

SEVERAL years ago it was quite a feat for couples to be married kneeling on cushiony stuff with their old love letters. Whereat the cynic and the victim of a breach of promise suit alike would smile wisely. As to business letters, this is undoubtedly a wise proceeding. It is well to have documentary evidence in every business transaction, no matter how small it may be. In regard to merely personal letters, a dissenting opinion might be expressed. Often are of so very personal a character that the best thing for all concerned is to destroy them as soon as they are read and answered. But the case of the sort of letter that is really a pleasant and interesting note of the day, it is often a pleasure to come back to them. It is a pleasure to come back to them. It is a pleasure to come back to them.

The Ultra-Masculine Woman

SHE jumped on the car while it was still moving and plumped herself down heavily into a side seat, that she felt extended half across the aisle. When the conductor came for her fare she pulled a ticket out of her pocket, and, regardless of the attention she was attracting, nonchalantly asked for her car went to Pemberton street. When her street was reached she jumped out of the car as she had jumped on and walked away with a pronounced stride.

Her dress consisted entirely of her actions. The only part of her attire which could not have been won with perfect propriety by a man was her skirt, and that was as short as possible. Her coat was an ordinary man's rug, in a light tan, and she wore a crush hat, whose only concession to custom was one very small and inconspicuous hatpin. Her hair was parted and gathered into a tight knot at the back of her head, and she wore a high white linen stock, and from a pocket of her coat protruded a large handkerchief from the other a pair of heavy deerskin gauntlets. Her shoes were thick, and the soles extended half an inch all around. And, to crown all, she wore a seal ring on her little finger.

Fortunately, this woman is by no means typical. It would be lamentable indeed if she were.

The Stylish Girl

It is better to be stylish than handsome" is a very true saying, but a ideas of style vary so that the real meaning of the word is hard to define.

However, the woman who fancies that she is stylish because she wears the latest fashion of hair, the same shape that many other people wear, was never more mistaken in her life. The really stylish woman wears what suits her, and not what looks well on some one else. A fashion of hair which looks well upon a tall, real figure, is merely a caricature on a small, dumpy one. A large woman can wear a hat which will completely extinguish a small one. But the small woman give up the idea of wearing the big hat? Not a bit of it. If she has once seen the large woman wear it and has admired her in it.

Once fashion called for all women to wear exactly the same cut of gown, the same fashion of hair, the same shape of hat. Even the same color was necessary, so that when "leather color" was the style, our girls looked like a forest of brown autumn leaves; when purple followed, like beds of violets.

But today no such law obtain, and women are at liberty to choose cut, shape or color and still be in the fashion. Why then will they, in an effort to appear "stylish," don the most incongruous articles, when by a little study they might select something becoming and in good taste and at the same time, equally up to date?

An Adaptation of the Separate Blouse

FOR several seasons the downfall of the lingerie waist has been predicted, but somehow it seemed to have a faculty of holding on securely as one of fashion's favorites that refused to be ousted. There is no doubt about it now, however, that the dainty lacy blouse—that fascinating creation of handwork and flimsy lace—has been made to take second place, at least for formal occasions.

What has caused this downfall? Let us not ask! "Le roi est mort," if not "morte," at least in a rapid decline. So long live the successor—the stylish net, lace, crepe de chine or chiffon blouses that will be seen at every tea, reception, matinee or bridge party this winter, where the elaborate afternoon gown will be worn.

These new blouses are not so much to be used as separate waists as to form part of a harmonious and complete costume. We find the most fragile materials made up with trimmings of broad-lace, velvet or the same fabric as the skirt and jacket with which they are to be worn.

There has been a gradual drifting back to the whole costume for several seasons—a drifting that has been more than welcomed by the woman of taste, too solid flesh, to whom the sharp dividing line of white waist and dark skirt was a constant and unpleasant reminder of her avowals and lack of inches. This winter it may, however, be said to have finally arrived.

But you say, are not these new waists white? What is the difference between them and batiste or muslin?

Well, there is a difference, and a marked one, as every one will acknowledge who has admired the stylish and becoming effect of white or cream net peeping out from under the folds of velvet or silk or from a slashed arrangement of cloth to match a skirt. It is just the difference between a patchwork quilt and a plain silk coverlet of eiderdown.

Frequently, too, the nets are dyed to match the gown in color, which caseless loss of cloth or velvet is required to show up a coarseness whole.

Besides the attractiveness, this adaptation of the separate net waist has the merit of economy. With one of them the ordinary street suit can be transformed into a dressy house gown by merely removing the jacket.

The designs shown to be worn with cloth or velvet suits, either in the home or under the coat.

Particularly charming is the upper one that goes with a velvet gown in the new smoke-gray that is so good this winter. The blouse is of smoke-gray chiffon or crepe de chine, with tiny accordion-pleated ruffles of the same cut on to simplify a neat and around the shoulder.

Long Live the Wedding Ring

THE season of brides is with us once more. Again blushing girls are only in good. They crowd the "wedding" and "quick lunch" restaurants, and spend in the aggregate an enormous amount of money, in the majority of cases for food that neither nourishes nor satisfies them. Business women in particular and brain workers especially among them, ought to know food values and plan their meals accordingly. They have not yet discovered that lettuce is twice as cooling as ice cream, and that mince-pie is not a dish for early summer.

It is not necessary to emulate the steak, fried potatoes and coffee of the average man. In fact, such a diet would be disastrous. A small portion of it is a great extent. A diet of lettuce, fruit, and a small amount of a thick soup, and is nearly as good as a sandwich or some cold meat, better or worse. In fact, a diet of simple wheat-patty makes a most satisfactory midday meal. Where the principal meal of the day, more may be eaten. ## The Revival of Rick-Rack

TEN or fifteen years back every woman was utilizing the flat, wavy rick-rack or braided for trimming waists or to adorn some bit of fancy work. This season her daughter is following her example, but, as usual, with a difference.

In its revival rick-rack is used in combination with colored embroidery to make a show. The rick-rack, which is generally white, is used in combination with colored embroidery to make a show. The rick-rack, which is generally white, is used in combination with colored embroidery to make a show. The rick-rack, which is generally white, is used in combination with colored embroidery to make a show.

latter may be made either of heavy Irish lace or can be of the crepe or chiffon, with appliques of hand-embroidered flowers on it, either in white or some pastel shades. The straps and small stiff bows holding down the ruffles are of velvet to match the skirt.

A striking blouse to be worn with a suede cloth jacket suit in the middle Russian violet shade is the middle one, in rather heavy notepad the es- set tone of the cloth. It is trimmed with a shallow yoke of tucked muslin, outlined with passementerie, which is continued in a pleasing design down the front of the blouse. Empire grille bows and a tiny bias fold around the waist are of a deeper tone of violet velvet.

Very stylish, indeed, is the last blouse, of eoru lace and the new shade of brown cloth, which forms a very artistic color scheme. The lace is so arranged that it peeps out between slashes of the cloth both on waist and sleeves in a most bewitching fashion. Tiny silk buttons and loops of silk cord the same shade as the cloth are used as a trimming.

All these waists have the deep and rounding in front. They either match the skirt or else are made of the velvet or cloth with which the blouse is trimmed. They all fasten in the back with buckles or ornaments.

Even where the lace or net blouses are not made to match a special costume, most of them show a touch of color in the way of velvet bows or folds put on in old designs—not so much as to be garish, but just enough to give an indescribable Frenchy look.

The allover lace waists, in both white and cream, will, of course, be worn; so will the lingerie ones, by the way. They are too convenient to be discarded, but they are certainly outdistanced in popularity by the new ones to match the suits.

It is comparatively easy, however, for the clever woman to transform a separate lace waist into part of a costume having adjustable trimmings that may be added when a dark gown is worn.

In this way the blouse can also be worn with a white cloth or voile skirt.

One of the prettiest of the all-white waists is of an allover German-embroidered lace. In rather deep cream, embroidered with heavily padded coin and pin dots. Such a blouse worn with a white skirt is extremely useful for an evening at home or to assist at an informal little tea. For, after all, nothing is more becoming to young and old alike than cream, white, and white.

One of this character has the merit of being comparatively unobtrusive. It is packed with cut irreparable damage in a rather case, and even may be washed in a tub, provided the skirt is of some material that stands water, as mesh or crepe de chine.

Business Women's Luncheon

WOMEN have still a great deal to say in the matter of economy. They crowd the "wedding" and "quick lunch" restaurants, and spend in the aggregate an enormous amount of money, in the majority of cases for food that neither nourishes nor satisfies them. Business women in particular and brain workers especially among them, ought to know food values and plan their meals accordingly. ## A Distinguished Visitor

Hon. A. C. Rutherford, premier of Alberta, came to Didsbury on Thursday night last to attend the Fair on Friday, but as the weather was so unsettled the Fair was postponed and the Premier went north on Friday. In conversation with the secretary of the Agricultural Society, Mr. H. B. Atkins, Mr. Rutherford stated that he thought he could return for the Fair on October 14th.

The Society and business men should get together and make this day a memorable one to welcome the Premier as well as help to make the fair a success.

Bank Block Sold

Hon. John Sharples, president, and Mr. G. H. Halford, general manager, along with the western superintendent and a number of the eastern directors of the Union Bank of Canada passed through Didsbury in the private car "Calcutta" on Friday evening the 13th inst.

The local manager of the Union Bank, Mr. F. N. Ballard, went north to Edmonton with them and we understand has succeeded in disposing of his fine Didsbury block to the bank.

No price was stated but no doubt this fine block brought in good returns to Mr. Ballard.

Team Drowned

The Nadrie ford on the Big Red Deer west of this was the scene of an expensive mishap for Percy Ross on Sept. 6th. While attempting to cross the stream at this point with a team attached to a buggy one of the animals became frightened when about in mid stream and sank, taking the other horse down with it. The struggles of the horses upset the buggy and both horses and the travelling companion, a Mr. Hitchcock, were thrown into the water, and in the swift current had a busy time of it reaching shore and even when they did reach land they were too exhausted to make their way up the steep banks. Fortunately their shouts for help when the buggy overturned were heard by Mr. Nadrie and he succeeded in rescuing both of them with the assistance of his daughter and aid of a rope. The dead team was found later on a sandbar further down stream. A few weeks before this accident a horse was drowned at the same place.

Fair Postponed

A small crowd came in to town last Friday to attend the Fair, and a few exhibits were brought in as well, but on account of bad weather which had prevailed for several days previous to Fair Day and which had made the roads almost impassable with mud, a few of the Fair Directors in town held a meeting late on Thursday afternoon and decided to postpone the Fair until Monday, October 14th. The weather will likely be more settled by that date and the farmers will be through with their harvest operations and will have more time to prepare for it.

If you have not already paid $1 for a membership in the Didsbury Agricultural Society do so at once and help a good thing along. This membership ticket admits you to the Fair and all privileges of the Society. Tickets may be obtained from this office or H. B. Atkins, secretary-treasurer.

Lee Warner Drowned

The Vancouver World reports the death by drowning of C. J. Lee Warner, who will be remembered as a former employee of the Union Bank here a year or so ago. Mr. Warner was rather an eccentric individual but was a very gentlemanly young fellow and his death will be heard of with regret by a great many who knew him at that time. Following is the report of his death:

C. J. Lee Warner, a young English man from Victoria, and recently a resident of Vancouver, was drowned at Nanaimo on Wednesday afternoon. The unfortunate man had undertaken to swim from the waterfront to Protection Island. He had reached Protection and was on his way back, when just near the red beacon, he was evidently seized with cramps, for the crew of the Kestrel, lying in the harbor, heard him calling for help. They immediately lowered a boat and started to his rescue, but he sank before they could reach him.

The deceased was a man of about 30 years of age. He was tall, powerfully built and an athlete, being an enthusiastic long distance walker. He was representing Westward Ho magazine. He was a journalist, and had done good work for various publications in the province. At the present time he was "doing" some articles on the island for an English publication. He was a great traveller and during his residence in South Africa had gained the championship as a long distance walker at 20 and 25 miles.

AROUND THE TOWN

Didsbury's $8,500 worth of bonds for the new fire fighting apparatus and street improvements are now on the market.

R. J. Timmons of Calgary, provincial representative of the Mason & Rich Pinn Co., was in town early in the week. He owns a farm in the Dog Pond section and has gone out to superintend harvesting operations.

Eat Royal Blue Biscuits. They're the best. Made in Calgary from Alberta wheat.

The past week has been notable for indoor sports. Two good checker players, one from Didsbury and the other from the Lone Pine, came together and the consequence is that the championship of the Didsbury district is held at the Lone Pine now.

Provincial Happenings

Innisfail taxpayers will cash up at the rate of 25 mills on the dollar this year.

B. Pennock, C.P.R. freight agent at Lacombe has been transferred to Edmonton.

Tofield, one of Alberta's very newest towns, has a kind of trade with close to fifty members.

It is stated Alberta Conservatives will have a provincial convention at Vermilion on Oct. 10.

Olds is putting on airs this week. A. Dillar is spending a few days there with his merry go round.

H. I. Edmonds, manager of the Bank of Commerce at Innisfail, has been transferred to Fernie, B.C.

43 residents of Red Deer have been summoned to appear before the police magistrate for nonpayment of dog tax.

Edmonton dealers have raised the price of milk. Only twelve quart tickets are now given for a dollar instead of fourteen.

By a vote of 57 to 7 Olds ratepayers carried the by-law to raise $12,000 by debentures for fire protection and public works.

The Merchants Bank at Red Deer has advanced the rate of interest on money loaned the town council from six to seven per cent.

Innisfail hopes to raise $11,000 in taxes this year of which $6,000 will be for general fund, $1,500 for debentures, and $3,500 for school purposes.

Red Deer firemen want their pay advanced to 25c. for practice, 35c. for false alarms, 75c. for first hour of fire and 75c. for each subsequent hour.

Fire did $9,000 damage in the old Queen's Hotel building at Lacombe on Saturday. The structure had recently been remodelled and fitted up into small stores.

Edmonton's electric light plant is overworked and negotiations are on with Strathcona to purchase the surplus supply that can be generated at the Strathcona plant.

The Red Deer Presbytery has been divided. The north half, which extends from Lacombe to Wetaskiwin and also includes the branch lines, will be known as Lacombe presbytery.

HONESTLY

'Tis remarkable the difference we've noticed in Cash Sales since cutting down the credit to a limit and inducing people to buy for Cash by giving a liberal DISCOUNT.
